DEATH TAKES DAVID MINTER

President of First National Bank of Gettysburg Dies at Home in Arendtsville to which he had recently Moved.

David G. Minter, president of the First National Bank of Gettysburg for the past thirteen years and one of the county's most widely known and highly respected residents, died at his home in Arendtsville on Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock aged 65 years.

Mr. Minter had been seriously ill a number of times during the past year but had always recovered to a great degree and within the past ten days was able to move to his remodelled home in Arendtsville. He had taken special pride in making comfortable and handsome the property in that town which he purchased recently from Dr. Fickel, of Carlisle. Saturday he was taken critically ill and never rallied, death coming Tuesday night.

Mr. Minter was a native of Franklin township and lived on the farm which was his birthplace until his recent removal to Arendtsville. He was a successful farmer and a man constantly interested in the welfare of his community.

Since 1890 Mr. Minter had been a director of the First National Bank and since 1898 its president, succeeding George Thorne, his father-in-law, to that office. It was during Mr. Minter's presidency that the bank has made its most rapid strides forward, erecting its present handsome home during the time he stood at the head of the institution and taking many other steps for its advancement.

He leaves his wife, who was Miss Magdalena Thorne, daughter of George Thorne. He also leaves one brother, George F. Minter, of Abilene, Kansas; and one sister, Mrs. Samuel Hershey, of Arendtsville.

Funeral Friday morning at ten o'clock in the Reformed church at Arendtsville, his pastor the Rev. T. C. Hesson preaching the sermon. Interment in the cemetery at Arendtsville.

ASPERS

Aspers, May 24—Mr. and Mrs. George M. Peters and daughter, Olive, spent Sunday in Gettysburg visiting the family of Thomas Biddle.

Old People's Day will be observed at Mt. Zion on Sunday next. Exercises will begin at 10 a. m. The pastor, Rev. S. Busby will lead the exercises and will preach an appropriate sermon. All welcome.

Nash Snyder has a collection of fifteen ancient coins. Some are of the seventeenth century and are well preserved. In all it is a good collection which Mr. Snyder, who is a veteran of the Civil War, has been gathering and saving for many years.

Nelson Baugher who has been ill for some time is now improving.

Frank House, of Pittsburg, recently visited the family of his brother, O. P. House, Esq.

FINE RAIN STORM

The refreshing rain and thunder storm which passed over Adams County on Tuesday evening was warmly welcomed by farmers, fruit growers, and almost everybody. The accompanying drop in the temperature was equally as welcome and those who had been suffering from the heat of some days past were given relief.

The storm which was general in this section of the state was accompanied by vivid lightning and heavy thunder. Minor damage was done but nothing of any special consequence resulted. Telephone communication was again interfered with and linemen were kept busy repairing the damage.

DISTINGUISHED PARTY IN TOWN

Thomas Nelson Page, Author, and Charles Scribner, Publisher, Come to Gettysburg as Guests of Southern Railroad Counsel.

Thomas Nelson Page, the author, was a visitor in Gettysburg today. As guest of Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Southern Railway, and with Charles Scribner, publisher, Roswell Page, of Hanover, Va.; David Paton, of New York; Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page, Mrs. T. P. Connor, wife of the Irish Parliamentarian, and Miss Hager, of Washington, the distinguished author arrived at 10.08 on the Western Maryland.

"I came to Gettysburg," said Mr. Page, "to go over the memorable battle ground, the lineaments of which every American should know, and try to obtain material to use in the life of General Robert E. Lee, which I am writing."

"Now is the time for the South to break the ice which has frozen her over in a political way for so long. This is her chance to nominate a man, who, while a Southerner, can swing the whole nation with him. I refer to Governor Wilson."

Mr. Page's new life of General Lee, which promises to be a keen character study, will be published by Mr. Scribner.

Captain Long was guide for the party over the battlefield.

LOST AT ATLANTIC CITY

The Philadelphia Record this morning contained the following from Atlantic City: With lost children the police of the resort have had sufficient experience to enable them to cope with any problem, but it was not until today that they had ever had an experience with a lost woman, and to make the matter more difficult, the woman, is 70 years old, Mrs. Elizabeth Foulkes, of Gettysburg, Pa. She paid a visit to Washington, D. C., and there was seized with a desire to see Atlantic City. Arriving here she was driven to a Pacific avenue hotel, and, after arranging to remain a few days, went out for a stroll. Now she cannot remember the name or location of the hotel, and the efforts of the police to find it have been thus far unavailing. Mrs. Foulkes is held an unwilling visitor at police headquarters. Her relatives in Gettysburg have been communicated with.

We have been unable to find trace of any relatives here or in the county who know the woman.

The Sproul main highway bill, which provides for a system of main highways and reorganization of the state highway department was sent to Governor Tener Tuesday night. The two houses of the legislature concurred in the report of the conference committee Tuesday and it only needs the signature of the governor to become a law.

Under provisions of the bill the governor will name a highway commissioner, two deputies and a full force of employees. The taking over of routes will begin at once and as soon as possible highways will be reconstructed. The bill carries $3,000,000 and $1,000,000 for state aid highways under former acts.

The following routes entering Gettysburg are included in the measure:

Route forty one from Carlisle to Gettysburg commencing in Carlisle and running by way of Mount Holly Springs, Hunter's Run and Goodyear to a point on the dividing line between Cumberland and Adams counties, thence by way of Idaville, Bendersville, Biglerville and Goldenville into Gettysburg.

The Tustin bill abolishing the road jury system is through both houses and on the way to the Governor.

The bill establishes in each county a board of viewers. In counties of more than 1,000,000 inhabitants the board shall have not less than six nor more than nine members, one third of whom shall be learned in the law. They are to be paid $5000 a year.

In the other counties the board shall consist of not less than three nor more than nine members, of whom one third shall be members of the bar, with pay of $5 for each day actually and necessarily spent on duty. In counties of less than 1,000,000 people one shall be either a surveyor or lawyer, and pay not less than $2, nor more than $5 a day, to be fixed by the Judges.

The Judges of the Courts shall in each case determine the number of members. Each member must be at least 25 years of age, a free holder and qualified elector, and have resided in the county five years immediately preceding his appointment. He shall not be engaged in any other public employment of profit.

Immediately after approval of the act the Judges shall appoint the members for a term of three years. The Courts are to make rules and regulations for the government of the boards. Heidemann for several weeks had seemed to anticipate his death as a welcome relief from his mental sufferings. He walked to the chair alone, repeating a prayer in German until the very moment that the current was turned on.
The crime, to which the young man eventually confessed, was one of the most brutal conceivable. After attempting to assault the young girl he killed her with an axe and dragged the body into some bushes, where it was found some days later.

The resolution names specifically John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Henry H. Rogers, Henry M. Flagler, John D. Archbold, Oliver H. Payne and Charles M. Pratt.
Although dead, H. H. Rogers is named in the resolution as one of the officers of the Standard Oil.
The resolution sets forth that the supreme court held the corporation to be illegal, and in effect, its officers guilty of effecting a combination in restraint of trade. Therefore, the resolution continues, the seven men named are amenable to criminal prosecution and the demand is made "that the attorney general of the United States be, and he is hereby directed to inform the senate of the United States what, if any, prosecutions have been begun, or are now pending against the said Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, or the said constituent companies or individual defendants above named or any of them for violations of said sections 1 or 2 of said Sherman anti-trust law."

REBELS AID FEDERALS
Insurrectos Will Aid Government to Capture City in Lower California Now in the Hands of Prophet Magon.

Insurrectos Will Aid Government to Capture City in Lower California Now in the Hands of Prophet Magon.
Juarez, Mex., May 24.—Word was received at the provisional government capital in Juarez that Vice President Corral has presented his resignation, to take effect at once.
The telegram was received by Francisco I. Madero, Jr., from Alfred R. Dominguez, special peace envoy in Mexico City.
The news was taken to mean that the vice president's resignation was requested to precede that of President Diaz, which is expected hourly.
When President Diaz resigns Senator Madero and his party immediately will leave for Mexico City to advise with Senor de la Barra in the political reorganization of Mexico. Madero will resign immediately after Diaz. Madero will take an insurrecto body-guard with him most likely.
Every word of the peace pact was read before the soldiers of Madero's army, which congregated in the principal streets of Juarez.
The first instance of military co-operation between the federal and insurrectos, now at peace, according to treaty, will be the capture of Las Vacas, now in the hands of a band of Magonists.
A message was received from Ernesto Madero, who lives at Monte. He wired that the town of Las Vacas, nearby, had been captured by the followers of Magon, the Los Angeles, Cal., prophet.
Madero said that a detachment of federal was marching on the town and he asked that orders be sent a large body of insurrectos in the vicinity that they co-operate with the soldiers against the common foe, attacking the town side by side. The rebels have been ordered to assist the federal in any way possible.

SCIENTISTS REVOLT
Minnesota Congregations Withdraw From the "Mother Church."
Minneapolis, Minn., May 24.—A. E. Smith, of the Fourth Church of Christ, Scientist, here, gave out a copy of a resolution adopted at a meeting of the church members by which, by a vote of 93 to 3, the members decided to withdraw from the "mother church" at Boston.
The reasons given are that "since the death of Mrs. Eddy the Christian Science board of directors have absolute authority to control the teachings," and that the board condemned Christian Science as taught by Abbot Smith, who was a personal student of Mrs. Eddy.
The congregation, therefore, decided to become a Christian Science reformed church. The statement also announced that similar action was taken by the Second Church of Christ.

STATEHOOD GOES THROUGH HOUSE
Admits Arizona and New Mexico Immediately.
Washington, May 24.—The joint resolution admitting Arizona and New Mexico to immediate statehood, but withholding approval of the constitutions of both states until the people have voted on certain proposed amendments to them, passed the house of representatives by a viva voce vote.
No roll call was demanded on the final vote. On a preceding motion to recommit the resolution, made by Republican Leader Mann, 31 Republicans voted with the Democrats, defeating the motion 214 to 57.
The resolution requires Arizona to vote on an amendment removing the recall provision as it applies to the judges, and requires New Mexico to vote on an amendment making its constitution more easily amendable in the future.
Neither state is required to adopt the amendments proposed by congress. Whether they are approved or rejected by the proposed referendums, the constitutions of the new states will stand finally approved when the respective votes have been taken.

THE HORSE THIEVES
By THEODORE L. BREWER
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"There ain't the same chance for a lively life out yere," said the old plainsman, "there use to was. These yere railroads ruin a country."
I was to spend the night in Josh Miller's cabin. We were smoking our pipes after supper, and his wife was washing the dishes. I encouraged him to talk about the country as it was formerly.
"Them was times when the men was wild as the beasts. Every man was armed with a rifle hooked to his saddle, two revolvers in his belt and likely a couple more in his saddlebags. Anyway that's the way I used to go about. And I tell you we had some pretty likely women about yere in them days. They could all shoot, and shoot straight enough too. And better than 'em I courted, too, for I wasn't married then, but so far as I could see she hadn't no use for me."
"The hoss thieves was about as bad stuff to deal with as anything we had out yere in them days. There was one gang of 'em that I and some of the rest of us got after and broke up. We killed some, hung some, and some of 'em got away. I learn that them as got away said they'd get even with me. They'd git 'em alive and when they got me they'd make me suffer a death for every man of their gang I'd killed."
"And they got me sure enough. One afternoon I'd strayed away from the settlement, crossed the river—one of the forks of the Missouri—for a ford and looked about for some game for supper. I had only my rifle with me, but I considered that enough to deal with any Indians roamin' about. I didn't come on to no game, and, feelin' kind of lazy, I laid down on the ground.
"The breeze rustled the leaves of a tree under which I was layin', and the birds was a-singin', and everything was peaceful. That was what made the difference when the shootin' and the scalpin' begun in them times. We jumped from one to 'tother in a jiffy. One minute it was listenin' to the gurglin' o' water and the sighin' of the breeze; the next we heard a 'bullet singin' or a warwhoop.
"Well, I fell asleep. I was woke up by a shake, and there, looking down into my face, was Bill Aiken, one o' the hoss thieves that had said he'd do me. He'd got my rifle, and I saw it was all up with me. Bill's hoss was nippin' the grass. So was mine. Three other fellers come ridin' up. They was the jolliest lot at gittin' me you ever see, and they begun at once to lay plans for torturin' me to death.
"They concluded to take me to their camp. They tied a lariat around my neck, and one of 'em held an end before me, and another held one end behind me, so that I shore couldn't git away. Then they put me on my hoss. To git to their camp they was obliged to go over the ford I'd come by. Two of 'em rode ahead and two behind me. When we reached the ford the first man went in up to his hoss' belly. I was wonderin' if I couldn't find some way to drown. But I didn't have much time to think about it, for I'd scarce got into the water when the man who'd gone in first pitched forward into the drink. At the same time I heard a crack and saw a bit o' smoke floatin' away from the high bank on 'tother side of the river. But I could see nothin' but the smoke.
"The second man, seein' the one ahead killed and not seein' what killed him, didn't know what to do. All of us was in the river, and crossin' a stream is the worst possible place for to be attacked. The third hoss thief called on the second to go on, but before he could do it there was another crack, and he dropped too. I was wonderin' if I was to be killed—rather hopin' I was—when the man behind me gave a yell, and he went the same way as the others.
"One idee by this time must 'a' got into the fourth man's head. I reckon he thought some one was doin' all this for me, and not likin' to give me a chance to escape, concluded to shoot me. I turned jist in time to see him puttin' his hand back to git his revolver when a red spot came in his forehead and he didn't git no pistol.
"Yere was four men either dead or so near dead they couldn't do nothin'. Two of 'em was goin' downstream under the water. Of course I didn't waste no time. I spurred my hoss and started across the ford. When I'd 'limbed the bank I looked for them as had done the shootin'. I didn't see no one. It was as peaceful there as in April mornin'. I listened, but I couldn't hear nothin' except a breeze shakin' the leaves of the trees. The grass was long, and I hunted about in it.
"Purty soon I came to a gal lyin' as if dead. She was the one I was tellin' you about a spell ago. A rifle and a 42 caliber revolver laid by her. I got off my hoss and knelt down to do somepin' to help her when she opened her eyes. Seein' me, she put her arms around my neck.
"She was the party as had killed four hoss thieves and had saved me. Bein' out thar, she had seen 'em and, knowin' I was nigh, had gone back to git the weapons. After killin' all four of 'em, like a gal, she fainted."
"That's the kind of girl I'm lookin' for," I remarked enthusiastically.
"You can't have that one," said the plainsman. "She's in thar washin' dishes. Besides, she's an old woman now."

With eggs representing in the neighborhood of two-thirds of the total value of poultry products, which last year were put at $150,000,000, the campaign which has been undertaken by the agricultural department with a view to stopping the average loss of 10 per cent of all eggs between the nest and the consumer through spoiling has much to justify it. Satisfactory results can only be had through the co-operation of all poultry raisers along the line of providing better nesting places, more frequent gathering of eggs and keeping them in cooler places and more frequent marketing.

It seems still to be a mooted point whether birds like the robin, thrush and flicker are endowed with a special instinct—a sort of wireless telegraph apparatus—which enables them to keep tab on worms stirring just beneath the surface of the soil or whether it is entirely a matter of a remarkably acute sense of sight and hearing. Whatever the faculty, it's a sure thing that one of these pretty fellows will make a beeline of several feet, cock head to one side and in a jiffy yank a big fat worm from beneath the grass. However, the bird doesn't bother about the philosophy of the transaction so long as it gets its own breakfast and food for its young.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.
Just as humans get overheated and take cold when leaving a badly ventilated, crowded building, so fowls when packed like sardines on a roost take cold when they go out into the frosty morning air.

When a cock quits crowing or drops down from high C he is sick, has something twisted round his tongue or has canker in his windpipe. A cock's crow is an index to his condition; a human's blare out indicates hot air.

Frozen droppings under a roost throw off cold like a cake of ice. This neutralizes the body heat of fowls and chills their intestinal and egg organs. Droppings should be removed to a dry place every morning.

When from the roost you hear a rattling sound it's a sign that ropp germs are around. If yellow tips are on the droppings seen look for a nasty stuff and diarrhea mean.

One source of bad air in henhouses is where droppings remain under the roost to freeze and thaw. Sleeping over such a mess sorely tries the vigor of the strongest stock.

Plaster shavings make best bedding for a hen hospital. They keep dry longest, do not trip a weak fowl and quickly absorb the moisture of droppings. Feed should be served in troughs when using shavings or sawdust.

"What would our great-grand-father say if he should come back?" is often asked. Well, if he should get back about dinner time on Christmas he'd ask in many homes, "Where on earth's the turkey?"

When you use a disinfectant in the drinking water a very slight film on the surface is sufficient. Most of it is nauseous and fowls will refuse to drink if you use too much.

When you go to the shows take your wife along. She has helped you raise your show birds and should have some of the pleasure. If you win give her her share of the credit; if you lose take all the blame.

In giving a fowl a liquid remedy made from a tar product it is wise to remember that such remedies are very strong. Less than a drop in the windpipe smother sometimes instantly. Capsules of it are apt to stick in the throat and burst and kill. Better make such medicine up into dough pills.

When you see the ad. "Expert poultryman wanted," before you apply sit down and figure how much you know about the work required. It not only means working out problems in flesh and blood, but requires business management.

The hatching season is now on, and, as usual, some will sit, set or sot a hen on a set, sitting or setting of eggs. Here's our rhyme, "Take it in time":
You take up Biddy by the legs and set her on a setting of eggs.
And if she doesn't think of sitting
She sits on them and keeps on sitting.

ACQUITTAL LIKELY IN HERESY TRIAL

Friends of Dr. Grant Believe
He Will be Censured Only.

SPEAKS IN OWN DEFENSE

Defense Declares Scandal Has Been Traced to a Senior Elder, Who Drove Four of Dr. Grant's Predecessors From the Church.

Atlantic City, May 24.—Acquittal of Dr. William G. Grant, of Northumberland, Pa., accused of heresy in his teachings of the Bible, is expected, following his appearance before the judicial commission of the Presbyterian general assembly, in which he made an impassioned plea for himself and the action of the commissioners in striking out two of the most sensational counts against him.

If Dr. Grant is acquitted it is believed that he will be subjected to censure for "careless and indiscreet" interpretations of the Scriptures.

Retraction by the prosecution of two of the most sensational counts, disbelief in the divinity and resurrection of Christ, because no tangible evidence was discovered, apparently has turned the scales in favor of Dr. Grant.

The defense played their trump card with the declaration that the inception of the scandal had been traced to one man, C. G. Van Alen, superintendent of Dr. Grant's Sunday school and a senior elder in the church. It was asserted that Van Alen's activities drove four predecessors of Dr. Grant from the church.

Dr. Grant Defends Himself.

The accused minister made a long statement denying that he was unorthodox in his views, and sought to justify his conception of God, Christ and the miracles by quoting from sermons preached by Rev. Charles Little, of Wabash, Ind., moderator of last year's assembly, and by Rev. Dr. Jowett, the minister who was brought from England to fill the pulpit of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, in New York city, at a salary to be $15,000.

According to Dr. Grant, both these eminent clergymen, in sermons delivered during this session of the assembly, referred to the "broader conception" of theology that was prevalent nowadays, which was giving the people a better and truer understanding of the deity.

Dr. Grant said in part: "The apostle would state without any reservation that his purpose and method has ever been, as it is now, to confirm men in the truth as it is in Jesus and as presented in the doctrinal standards of the Presbyterian church. All his life he has been a Presbyterian and his ancestors for generations back in Scotland have also held to this faith."

"It would be a great grief therefore to him, if through any miscarriage of justice, he should be debarred from continuing in a ministry that has been the greatest joy to him and to which more than anything else he owes his mental and spiritual development."

"So far as he is aware, the apostle has never knowingly violated his ordination vows or departed from Holy Scripture as the infallible rule for faith and life. If the apostle knows or if he can judge of his own ministry, the apostle believes that his ministry has been constructive rather than destructive. This would certainly appear to you to be true if the apostle could present before you the fruits of his preaching of the last twenty-five years."

Then followed a sweeping apology for any alleged "heretical utterance."

"No one," said Dr. Grant, "could feel more deeply regretful than the apostle if anything he has said or written should give offense either to his fellow ministers of the church or to members of his congregation. The church is certainly broad enough to permit diversity of opinion on matters not essential to salvation. Rev. Dr. Little himself said as much as this."

The conception of God in the earlier part of the Old Testament, he added, was of an entirely different being than the conception in the latter part and in the New Testament. In proof of this he adduced the incident of the slaughter of the Shulamites by the children of Israel, and said that he did not believe God deliberately handed over 10,000 people to death.

"Nor," said he, "do I think any man in this room believes such a thing nor that our dead Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ believed it."

This created quite a sensation. In referring to those who have brought this prosecution Dr. Grant called them "men hot on the hunt for heresy."

With a hint of tears in his voice, Dr. Grant said that he did not wish to pose as a Presbyterian, if he was not one, but that he believes himself to be one.

PRESIDENT OPENS NEW YORK LIBRARY

$9,000,000 Building Now Ready For Public.

New York, May 24.—You can go to the public library, take your choice of 1,000,000 books and read in luxurious surroundings from 9 a. m. until 10 p. m.

The great marble building at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street, where the Astor, Lenox, Tilden and city collections are now housed, was dedicated by President Taft, Governor Dix, Mayor Gaynor and a company of distinguished guests.

It has cost the city $9,000,000 to transform the old Croton reservoir into a palace for readers. It has been fourteen years since the legislature passed an act providing for the building. It took eight years and seven months to complete the library building after the corner-stone was laid. As it stands, the library represents the most modern and scientific methods of arranging volumes and accommodating not only the general reader, but the student in special research. And any "unobjectionable person," as the regulations say, may take advantage of these riches without cost.

President Taft came from Washington, accompanied by Attorney General Wickersham, Senator Bacon, Major Butt and Charles D. Hilles, the president's secretary.

The venerable John Bigelow, president of the New York library, escorted the president to a central seat on a dais. Bishop Greer made the opening prayer. Mr. Bigelow presented George L. Rives, who read a long historical address.

Mr. Bigelow told the story of the growth of the library. He recalled a talk he had with Samuel J. Tilden concerning the wisdom of providing so much fiction for the public.

The president made the last address.

WOMAN'S BODY IN RIVER

Was School Teacher Who Disappeared Three Months Ago.

Burlington, N. J., May 24.—The body of Miss Marianna Sutterly, the school teacher from St. Mary's Hall, who mysteriously disappeared about three months ago, was found floating in the Delaware river off Edgewater Park.

The body was discovered by a thirteen-year-old boy named Briscoe, who was rowing a boat in midstream when he discovered the body. He towed it to the shore, where it was immediately identified.

Miss Sutterly was clad in the same blue tailor-made suit which she wore on the night of her disappearance. There were no marks upon her body. She had been in ill health for some time before her disappearance, and it is believed that she may have committed suicide.

HUSTON MUST SERVE JAIL TERM

Supreme Court Affirms Conviction of Capitol Architect.

GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

Affirms Action of Lower Court, Which Sentenced Him to Serve Six Months to Two Years in Prison and Pay $500 Fine.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 24.—The supreme court of Pennsylvania handed down an opinion in the case of Joseph M. Huston, the capitol architect, affirming the action of the Dauphin county court in refusing him a new trial.

According to his own counsel, the decision of the state's highest tribunal means that the architect will have to serve his sentence to prison unless some new and now unknown means of obtaining another stay of execution is obtained. The convicted man has ten days before the decree of the court takes effect.

The sentence imposed in the Dauphin county court by Judge Kunkel, and upheld last March by the superior court and now by the supreme court, was that Huston should serve from six months to two years in the eastern penitentiary and pay a fine of $500 and the costs of the prosecution.

The opinion in full was read by Chief Justice Fell as follows:

"The order allowing this appeal limited the argument to the assignments of error which relate to the actions of the court of quarter sessions on sending the jury back for further deliberations after a verdict of guilty of defrauding the commonwealth had been presented to the court and the foreman of the jury had attempted an explanation of the verdict in a colloquy between himself and the trial judge."

"After a consideration of the whole colloquy as it appears in the reporter's notes of the case a majority of the court are of the opinion that the judgment appealed from should be affirmed on the opinion of the superior court. Judgment affirmed."

Huston was not in court. The appeal on which the decision was based was taken on March 25 last in Philadelphia and argument began there on April 24.

FOUR MEN LYNCHED

Pearl Hunters, Robbed and Stripped, Found Hanging to a Tree.

Compton, Ky., May 24.—Swinging in the branches of a big tree in the deserted portion of Letcher county, the nude bodies of four pearl hunters who, it is said, have found many valuable pearls within the last week, were found by a passerby.

It is believed that the men were lynched by thieves and their bodies swung from the tree. One of the bodies was identified by Dr. F. H. Lewis as that of J. W. King, a pearl hunter, who found a pearl a few days ago valued at $1000. The other three were not identified.

The motive for the hanging has not been fathomed and feeling is at a high pitch. The other three men are said to be from Oregon, who, attracted by the large finds along the Kentucky river at this point came to seek pearls.

The bodies had been hanging in the open air for probably a day or two. No clothing or anything about the four men was to be found which would lead to their identification.

There has been no trace of the guilty parties found. There has been no robbery in Letcher county in many months, and as there were no strangers in the neighborhood the crime is shrouded in mystery.

KIDNAPPERS SENTENCED

Sent Up For Burglary Because There Was No Law Against Child Stealing.

Las Vegas, N. M., May 24.—Judge J. C. Roberts, of the district court, pronounced sentence on Will Rogers and Joe Wiggins, the confessed kidnapers of little Waldo Rogers, on March 29 last.

Rogers received five to twelve years in the penitentiary and Wiggins seven to twelve years. In the absence of a statute for kidnapping in New Mexico, the men were prosecuted for burglary, as they broke into a house to steal the child.

FITTING THE EWES FOR EARLY LAMBS.

Among the problems that confront the early lamb grower the one of feeding holds a prominent place. It is necessary to keep the sheep in good condition, yet not too fat, and after the lambs are dropped to force both sheep and lambs to their greatest capacity until the lambs are ready for market, writes H. P. King in Country Gentleman. How this can be done best and also most economically is a question on which there might be great difference of opinion, but it is my purpose here to describe a method that has been applied successfully for several years and one which seems economical.

As soon as the sheep are housed in the fall they are fed clover hay in the morning and corn fodder at night, care being taken to feed only what they will eat up clean.

They have free access to salt and water all the time. The cornstalks were grown in drills about three feet apart, on which a good many ears have formed. The stalks from the parts of the field in general on which grow the poorest and smallest ears are fed before lambing and those with the best ears after. This avoids feeding too much corn before the heavier feeding is begun. The sheep have no difficulty in husking the corn or getting it off the cob, and they certainly waste less than the ordinary corn sheller. This feeding is continued with little variation until a few days after the lambs are dropped unless bean pods are available, in which case they are substituted occasionally for the night feeding of fodder.

As soon as possible after the lambs are dropped the sheep with lambs are placed in pens by themselves and heavier feeding is begun. At first only a light feed of oats and bran is given once a day, but this is gradually increased until they are fed both morning and night all they will stand. Any indication of overfeeding, however, will cause a drop in the feeding for a few days. Then, in connection with this feeding of oats and bran, more corn fodder is fed and stalks having the best developed ears of corn. This feeding is continued until the lambs are shipped. Then the sheep are at once sorted out into pens by themselves and put back on the old feed of hay and stalks and kept so until they are turned out in the spring.

The Dorset sheep is a survival of a white faced, horned, short woolled English breed that has descended unimpaired from a remote period. It is rather larger and longer legged than the Down race. The ewes are prolific and produce their young earlier than most breeds. They are hardy, quiet, good feeders and readily adapt themselves to new conditions.

This method of feeding saves a great expense in the handling of the corn, and the heavy feeding is continued only during the time that is necessary for growing the lambs—a period of from five to nine weeks. It is often necessary, however, to stop the feeding of cornstalks at intervals of a few days before lambing, as the sheep are apt to become too fat and have more milk than the young lambs can take at first. In general, the better the condition of the sheep before lambing the quicker the lamb will be ready for market.

Rape For Lambs.

If lambs are intended for fall or early winter market a piece of rape may be sown not later than July 1. In an experiment conducted at our college, says the New York Farmer, rape pasture took the place of grain for each lamb daily in comparison with another lot on grass pasture with one pound of grain daily and no rape. In other words, one pound of grain was saved by each lamb daily, and the lambs on rape made just as much gain as the other lambs that received one pound a day.

It was further learned when finishing both lots off in early winter that the lambs that had received rape before winter feeding did considerably better than the other lot not receiving rape before being put into the lot. Flock masters who are acquainted with the value of rape sown it with small grain or corn to pasture it off after the grain is harvested.

Castrate the Grade Bucks.

The grade buck lambs should be castrated early in the season. Only lambs of pure blood and superior quality should be saved for breeding purposes. New blood should be added to the flock by buying stock rams of pure blood from reputable breeders.

Atomic Sulphur or Lime Sulphur Solution combined with Arsenate of Lead used as directed in Prof. Scott's Bulletin, is the best treatment for controlling fungous diseases and Codling Moth on apples and Lime Sulphur Solution 2 gallons to 50 gallons of water with from 3 to 4 lbs. of Arsenate of Lead added to the diluted mixture is the best treatment for use on potatoes.

Growers, however, who prefer to use Bordeaux Mixture combined with Arsenate of Lead, notwithstanding the evidence that other treatments are better, do not need to purchase it under a proprietary name or at fancy prices (See Statements of Prof. Stewart on Page 183 of the Report of the State Horticultural Association for 1911).

If you will come to us we will sell you Bordeaux Mixture combined with Arsenate of Lead under its proper name and on its own merit at

We believe, however, the growers in Adams County will make a mistake in using Bordeaux Mixture or any preparation containing copper, because of the almost certain russetting of the fruit which destroys its natural beauty and lessens its true market value.

PROFIT IN RAISING HEAVY DRAFTERS.

Draft mares should possess great constitutional vigor, good style and excellent action. They should be deep and broad and long, with smooth bodies and clean and smooth limbs, well set. Mares should be as symmetrical as possible, avoiding extremes in any direction. If the legs are too long or too crooked it denotes weakness; if too short or too straight, a poor, slovenly traveler is certain. Size is of great importance, but do not turn a mare down simply because she is small, provided she possesses the other good qualities

"The first colt I ever raised was a fine, high grade Percheron, as my father-in-law was at that time an importer of Percheron horses in Illinois," writes J. W. Barnhart in the Kansas Farmer. "I got my colt for the trouble of breeding, and this gave me my opportunity of starting right in the horse business. In my twenty-six years of breeding experience I have never bred to anything but pure bred Percherons, and for twenty years of that time I have owned my own stallions. I have never bred to a stallion that weighed less than a ton at maturity." The Percheron here pictured is a horse of high quality.

In a large degree. The size can be in creased by careful breeding and feeding much easier than the other defects can be eliminated.

The sires should be pure breeds of a recognized breed of draft animals. He may be a little shorter and more compact than the mare; otherwise the description given of the mares applies to the stallion also. Do not breed to the largest horse, but select the best one. Do not crossbreed if you can help it, especially do not mix the breeds indiscriminately.

Having selected a sire of a certain type, stick to that breed if possible. If you must change, change to the breed that has the most good sires in your neighborhood so that you can keep up one line as long as possible. The best time for colts to come is in April and May. Earlier than this would be a great risk and more attention would have to be given to the dam. During the period of gestation the mare should have a good, nutritive ration, say plenty of clover hay, with a rich grain feed of oats and bran, depending, of course, upon the amount of work the animal is doing. If she is not at work care should be taken to give her plenty of exercise. She will be all the better for being worked if she does not become exhausted. Moderate pulling is not injurious, but if she should slip or fall she is liable to be injured. Fast driving or backing heavy loads must be omitted.

If the colts are properly fed and well cared for until four or five years old and then carefully broken they will sell readily at a good profit. It pays to raise heavy draft horses, and every farmer who has tried it has found this to be true.

As a result of a number of cases which have been thrashed out in court in several states the principle seems to be pretty well established that when a nurseryman purposely substitutes inferior fruit trees in place of the kind ordered the purchaser can recover damages equal to the loss sustained. This is a fact that both nurserymen and orchardists should remember.

CASTRATING AND DOCKING LAMBS.

If the lambs are strong and doing well I dock them between the age of one and two weeks, writes a Minnesota shepherd in the American Agriculturist. Two men are required to do the job. One catches the lamb and puts its head between his legs and holds the hind legs, one in each hand. The little animal can be easily held in this way without being able to struggle much, and the man doing the dock-

In selecting a ram the most important quality is constitution. The indications of a strong constitution are many. The most apparent are a large breast, short legs set well apart, well sprung ribs, making plenty of room for the vital organs; a good heavy horn if he is of the horn type, large, solid bones and a general masculine appearance, a fighter if occasion requires it and a hearty, rapid eater. The sheep shown herewith is of the Cheviot breed and was a winner at the Chicago International show.

ing may do his work. Docking, although simple, requires care and deftness. The one who does the job first takes a soft string and ties it around the lamb's tail close to the body to prevent excessive bleeding. Now he catches the tail in one hand and with a good sharp knife in the other he can sever the tail with one draw of the blade.

I never put anything on the cut because it very quickly forms a scab from the little blood that runs from it. I never knew of a lamb to die from being docked in this way, but I have known of some dying when no string was used. The string may be taken off about twenty-four hours after the operation. One man can do this job nicely by catching the lamb and holding it between his legs while he takes off the string.

I endeavor to castrate at the age of three to four weeks. One man here again catches the lamb and holds him while the operation is performed. The party holding the lamb will turn him on his back and then get astride at the front feet and sit lightly on him. He then takes the lamb's two hind feet, one in each hand and holds them down closely and firmly to each side. In this position the lamb is able to struggle very little and is in a good position for the man to perform the operation. I use water and a little carbolic acid to wash the parts of the bag where the insertion is made. After the testicles are removed a mixture of sweet oil and carbolic acid, 1 per cent acid to 10 per cent oil, is put in the cut. I have never experienced any bad results in doing the work in this way. If it is late summer when the job must be done it is well to smear the bag with a little pine tar the next morning, and this will keep the flies away.

Developing the Colt.

In order to get big horses the colts should be given a chance to grow fast—to produce large frame and strong bones. It is not necessary to keep them "as fat as a pig," but they should be kept in growing condition, and that means feeding more or less grain.

Oats are good for this purpose during the first summer. If one is feeding corn to his work horses he should provide a place for the colts to get oats. They will soon learn to eat it and then go to their mangers at feeding time. They may eat with the mares if the manger is not too high and corn is not the main grain feed, but it is more satisfactory to have them take their own meals by themselves. In this way they can also be favored with a little choice hay, which may be kept on hand for their special use. If the colts are well started on hay and grain while still nursing their dams there will be no trouble at weaning time. In fact, they will hardly know when weaning time comes. They will continue to make good gains and go through the first winter in fine condition.

Influenza in Horses.

This disease, influenza, usually runs its course in about three weeks. In the early stage give two drams chlorate of potassium and two drams nitrate of potassium at a dose in one pint water twice a day. This will relieve the distressing cough and fever. After the sixth day give one tablespoonful each of tincture chloride of iron, ginger and gentian at a dose twice a day for a week. This will tone up the system and strengthen the animal. If you have a horse that is a wind sucker mix four ounces each sulphate of iron and nitrate of potassium and divide into twenty-four doses. Give one a day in bran mash. Put on a muzzle when the animal is not feeding.

Let In the Sunshine.

Sunshine is a great purifier; allow it free access to the barn whenever possible.

Looks and good sense are quite as often at variance in the horticultural as in the realm of fashion and social life. The average householder will carefully rake all the leaves and litter from the rose beds and beneath the other shrubs and hedges because the looks of the premises are thereby improved, and yet these very leaves, blown there by the wind, are nature's means of furnishing mulch to hold the moisture and a decaying humus to nourish the life of the growing shrubs. These ends are carried out perfectly in timber tracts untrampled by rake or spade. Here forest trees

He Didn't Get Over.
Arthur Balfour, the British ex-premier, once was in a great hurry to get to England from his post in Ireland, and, there being no regular steamer for some days, he proposed to cross over in a cattle boat. But in the man from whom he sought information he found a home ruler of most ardent views.
"Can I cross in tonight's boat?" asked Mr. Balfour.
"No, ye can't, thin," said the Irishman.
"And why not?"
"Because 'tis a cattle boat."
"Never mind that. I'm not particular."
The home ruler gave a little laugh.
"No, Mr. Balfour," he retorted; "I dare say ye're not, but the cattle are."

A Premature Question.
When President Eliot of Harvard was in active service as head of the university he was noted among the students for his abrupt and brusque manner. Reports had come to him that one of his young charges was in the habit of absorbing more liquor than was good for him, and President Eliot determined to do his duty and look into the matter.
Meeting the young man under suspicion in the yard shortly after breakfast one day, the president marched up to him and demanded, "Young man, do you drink?"
"Why—why—why," stammered the young man, "why, President Eliot, not so early in the morning, thank you."—Boston Transcript.

Badly Twisted.
An Irishman and his wife were asleep in bed when the wife thought she heard a noise downstairs, which she imagined was made by burglars, and, awakening her husband, she said, "Wake up, Pat; there are burglars downstairs." So Pat arose and hastily dressed himself, but in his haste he put his trousers on backward. Quickly grabbing a lamp, he started down the stairs; but, owing to the trousers being tight, he stumbled on the first step and fell down the whole flight. His wife heard the racket and went to the top of the stairs. "Are you hurt?" she asked. Pat arose and, feeling himself to ascertain if he was hurt, found the way he wore his trousers. "No, darlin', I'm not hurt in the least. But I'm all turned around entirely. I gave me body the devil's own twist."

Quite Informal.
Arthur Brisbane, editorial writer for Mr. Hearst, has been a great friend of John L. Sullivan, the former heavyweight champion, for many years. When Brisbane was a newspaper writer in London, John L. was given an audience by the late King Edward, then Prince of Wales.
"By George," exclaimed Sullivan to some of his friends, "Brisbane is the leading young journalist of America, and if I meet the Prince of Wales Brisbane does too."

When the little party arrived at the palace for the audience the court attendants nearly had heart failure as John L. introduced Brisbane in these words:

"This is my pal. He's Arthur Brisbane, the leading young journalist of America."

They pointed out that a newspaper man, especially an American of that profession, could not be present at the reception.

"No Brisbane no me!" said Sullivan flatly.

Finally they were admitted, and then it was Brisbane's turn to get heart failure. Sullivan strode up to the Prince of Wales, grasped him by the hand and said in his deep voice:

"Hello, prince! Let me present Arthur Brisbane, the leading young journalist of America."—Popular Magazine.

Two Scotch Stories.

A Scotch schoolmaster in Banffshire years ago had strong views on the subject of dress. In the day when ermine was the rage a girl came to school with a very extensive one, which much exceeded the space between the desk and the form on which she had to sit. The teacher, seeing this, said to her, "Gang awa' home and tak' off thae girds (hoops) and come back to the school as God made ye."

Another rough and ready dominie was examining his boys in a catechism and asked if God had a beginning. "No," said the boy. "Will he have an end too?" "No," said the boy, and the master was satisfied.

His store is surely a beehive.
He's busy till he's dizzy.

KURIOS FROM KORRESPONDENTS
Q.—I have a Plymouth Rock hen here that is laying eggs with a pinkish white. She has already laid three in twenty-four days, and I should like to have your opinion as to the cause. A.—The fat around your hen's egg machine impedes the work of the muscles as they push the egg along, and they consequently bleed. Sometimes only a tiny clot appears in the egg; again, the blood mingles with the albumen, and you have that pinkish white.
Q.—Please state where there is a market for duck eggs, how they compare in price with hen's eggs and what color of shell is popular. A.—Duck eggs find their best market in the city, where the white popular shelled eggs sell at a higher price than chicken eggs to the Hebrew element.

Q.—What do you think of fish scrap as meat for breeders and chicks? What is it made of? A.—It is very good if fresh. It is made of ground codfish heads.

Q.—I exhibited Pekin ducks last winter at two shows, entering the same two birds at both. One duck was creamy white and the other white, but otherwise they were alike in weight, shape and style. At the first show the creamy bird won first, the other second. At the second show it was the reverse. Which judge was right? A.—If both ducks were alike in other respects the first judge was right, as the Standard calls for "creamy white."

Q.—I notice quite a number of poultrymen recommend tobacco dust for body lice on poultry. Is it ever fed to fowls for intestinal worms? A.—We never heard of its use for such purpose except in case of sheep, where it is fed to kill the stomach worm. A sure remedy for worms in poultry is a handful of oak wood ashes to every two quarts of mash twice a week.

When eggs are allowed to accumulate in the nest they not only are broken and start egg eating, but they encourage the hens to be broody. If eggs are removed as they are laid a turkey will lay as high as seventy in a season.

Refrigerator eggs from Australia are frozen so hard that a London dealer threw one at his office wall and made a hole in the plaster, but did not crack the shell. A lawyer, astonished, took three home to surprise his wife. He banged them down on the table where she and her fashionably dressed friends were playing cards, when—oh, horrors!—every egg busted. They had thawed.

With a corn crop of 3,125,713,000 bushels the green duck crop will exceed all records. There is now one medical quack to every 800 of the population, and our college incubators are still turning the fresh green product out at a fearful rate.

In March a California incubator manufacturer was running his factory day and night and was yet back 2,500 in orders, and the day was once when there was not an incubator in this country. Today over 300,000 are sold annually. Take that, pessimist.

To our friends who got rattled over that reciprocity treaty for fear it would flood this country with fresh eggs we just rise long enough to remark that Canada's surplus eggs for a whole year would supply New York city for just one day. Eggs for now aren't included.

When an egg is broken in a setting the smear not only imperils the hatchability of the daubed eggs, but also makes the shells rough, so that there is friction when the hen turns her eggs and thus more breakage. Such eggs should be washed in warm water and at once be returned to the hen.

If old eggs hatch at all they hatch late and give poor chicks. As incubator chicks should not be fed the first meal too soon or the early chicks from the fresh eggs get theirs too late. Never be fresh yourself, but always set all fresh eggs for success.

When you give a chick feed as soon as it comes from the shell you overtax its digestive system, and that is generally its finish. Give the chick a day to assimilate the yolk and then feed little, but often.

To win a market for fine eggs and poultry these days is easy, but to win back confidence after imposing on a customer is seldom accomplished. The fellow that sticks to business and the Golden Rule is never branded as a knave or fool.

ign back as far as 1873, and with their germinating quality often poor, there would seem to be absolutely no argument in favor of the practice. Perhaps the belief is entertained by some gullible congressmen that the bestowal of these free seeds imposes a courtesy obligation which it is supposed will be canceled by political support. Whether abolished or not, this poor farce ought at least to be no longer perpetuated under the auspices of the department of agriculture, which is or ought to be worthy of better things.

A reader of these notes asks what states ranked highest in corn production during 1910. The agricultural department at Washington has recently issued a pamphlet making denial of a statement published a short time ago in California papers to the effect that the department had originated a new type of navel orange and had several thousand of the trees for sale. The department is experimenting along the line of new citrus fruits, but thus far has nothing to which it can give an unqualified indorsement for commercial purposes.

Remarkable Record

Flesh-forming Food That Succeeds Nearly Every Time.

A man or woman might as well starve outright as to take food into the stomach and not have it assimilated, yet in Gettysburg as well as in every other town and city, there are many people who are thin, pale and seem underfed, simply because the food they eat is not assimilated, and fails to make good blood and firm flesh. Samsore, the wonderful flesh-forming food, taken before or after meals, mingles with the food, so that it is assimilated by the system and makes rich blood and pleasing plumpness.

Anyone who is thin, weak, scrawny and emaciated can put 50c on deposit with People's Drug Store and take home a box of Samsore. If the treatment does not give a noticeable increase in good, firm flesh and restlessness and health, they will return the money without any questions.
